

DATACOM Sphere

Community Directory

Solution

Datacom Sphere provides an elegant, modern solution for managing and publishing a directory of community groups, clubs and facilities.

Content is maintained in MultiChannel, which provides a cloud content as a service function, allowing content to be maintained in a browser.

Entries can have metadata such as one or more (hierarchical) categories and suburb. These can then be used to browse the entries, and filter.

You can have as many types as you wish, and customise the attributes of each type. For example every item might have a name, description, small and large photos, and a spatial location for showing on a google map.

Benefits

Content is maintained centrally using a Create One Publish Everywhere (COPE) strategy, making it available to multiple channels.

You might then extend sports club to have grades and fees, while clubs might have opening hours.

Datacom Sphere provides template channels. These include a modern responsive design website, digital signage, and mobile apps.

Content can also be surfaced on other regional websites. Or you can build your own channels – the choice is yours.

Features

- Author once, publish to multiple channels
- Modern Website template
- Responsive design – works well on phones and tablets
- Blazingly fast performance
- Simple, hassle free content authoring
- Manage users and permissions yourself
- Draft (with preview) and published states
- The public can request new entries and changes, with admin approvals
- Reports and alerts to ensure data does not get stale
- Full audit log
- Filtering by meta-data

The MultiChannel content workbench allows you to easily edit and publish structured content, without having to worry about how that content is presented.
